PROPOSALS

For Publishing, by Subscription,

THE COMPLETE WORKS OF

SIR WALTER SCOTT:

With a Biography: being the first American (and only) edition which contains the Author's last additions and illustrations, arranged upon their respective pages.

A COMPLETE and uniform edition of the various productions of the great 'Minstrel of the North,' is a desideratum with the American public. No library is complete without them, and no edition extant is sufficiently compact for such a repository; while the endless number of editions, without any uniformity in size, heretofore published, besides being exceedingly cumbrous, are far too voluminous and expensive to be within the reach of the great majority of readers. The undersigned therefore announce, that they have now in press, and will issue, an edition of the Works of Sir Walter Scott, which will embrace all his Poems, Novels, Histories, Biographies, and Fugitive Compositions, as well as the Biography and Private Correspondence, now in the course of publication in England, under the superintendence of Mr. Lockhart.

1st. In Parts: each Part embracing as much matter as is contained in two volumes of the present editions of the Waverley Novels, which will be put at the unprecedented low price of THIRTY SEVEN AND A HALF CENTS.

2d. Two parts will appear each month; but should the publishers find the work to meet the patronage they anticipate, FOUR PARTS will be issued monthly.

3d. The whole will be completed in seven volumes, or forty eight parts.

The paper on which the above is now printing, has been made expressly for the purpose; the present parts may, therefore, be considered a fair specimen, in every respect, of the whole work; but, should dissatisfaction arise with any subscriber, owing to an inferior article being offered, he may discontinue at any time, and have the amount paid returned.

Note.—The publication of the first volume is deferred until the receipt of the Biography, Private Correspondence, and the New Edition of the Author's Poetical Works, with 'contemporary criticism—various readings—and correspondence with some of the most eminent persons of the time when the Poems first appeared,' now in the course of publication in England.

Volume 1 will be ornamented with an excellent Portrait of Sir Walter Scott.

Franklin Buildings, corner of Ann and Nassau streets, New York.

Mr. Stewart offered the following resolutions, as amendments:

"Resolved That a committee of eight persons be appointed to report the best plan for the improvement of the Monongahela river.

Resolved That a committee of eight persons be appointed to prepare a Memorial to Congress, in favor of said improvement."

After considerable discussion, the above resolutions were adopted, and the following committees appointed.—On the first resolution, Messrs. Haymond, Gay, Sandy, Kincheloe, Cox, Byrne, Arthurs, Davis, Hill, Findley, Black, Boughner, Nicholson, Bowman, Powers, and Plummer.—On the second resolution, Messrs. Sloan, Arthurs, Plummer, Findley, Barns, Ray, Johnson, and Sharp.—On the third resolution, Messrs. Stewart, Craig, Beazel, Love, Hughes, McGee, Shinn, and Newlin.

The convention adjourned, to meet to morrow morning, at 9 o'clock.

Wednesday, Sept. 26.—The Convention assembled in pursuance of adjournment.—The names of the Delegates were called over.

On motion of Mr. Black, Messrs. Irons and Stone, were admitted as delegates to supply vacancies in the delegation from Greene County, and on motion of Mr Gay, the report of Dr. Howard was read.

On motion of Mr. Christy, Edgar C. Wilson, member of Congress, elect, from Virginia, was admitted to a seat in this Convention.

Mr. Haymond, from the Committee appointed to report the manner in which the objects of this meeting can be best attained, reported the following preamble and resolutions, which were unanimously adopted.

"We, the Representatives in the convention here assembled, having been called together by the spontaneous voice of the people whom we represent, feeling a deep interest in common with the people living upon the Monongahela river, and its tributary streams, a country already advancing to a high state of improvement, increasing in agricultural productions and manufacturing institutions, with a valley, extending from Pittsburgh about one hundred and fifty miles into Virginia, with a soil capable of great improvement, sustaining a rapidly increasing population, possessing inexhaustible beds of Iron Ore, Stone Coal, and other valuable minerals, the use and manufacture of which may be extended to any amount; having, too, immense forests of the finest timber on the western waters, used, in the present imperfect navigation of the river, altogether for building boats that play upon the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, the transportation of which can now only be effected in times of high water.

For transportation down the river, we have the productions of our agricultural pursuits, and our lumber, our immense beds of coal, our manufactured iron, glass, and paper, the gross value of which may be estimated at one million of dollars annually.

We are dependant upon the salt works near Pittsburgh for our supply of that indispensible article, used in immense quantities in our region of country for stock, manufacturing purposes, and family consumption. The larger portion of our groceries, such as sugar, lead, coffee, tea, &c., are also procured from Pittsburgh, together with a considerable portion of our dry goods, which articles are now carried, in times of freshets, in Keel and Steamboats, as high up the river as Morgantown, in Virginia.

This convention, conceiving the improvement of the Monongahela river to be a work of great national importance, and from the present flourishing state of the finances of the country, and believing the time has arrived when they may successfully ask of the government of the United States, an appropriation of money for carrying into effect so desirable an object, have come to the following resolutions:

Resolved, by this Convention, That the improvement of the navigation of the Monongahela river, is a subject of deep interest to the people we represent, as well as to the whole surrounding country, and that in our opinion, it is of sufficient national importance to justify the Government of the United States in making an immediate appropriation to complete the improvement of so much of the said river as the survey, plan, and estimate, may require."

Resolved, That the President of the United States be earnestly requested to direct a continuation of the survey, plan and estimate, for improving the Monongahela river to such points on the said river, as may be susceptible of improvement, and the interests of the country may require.

Mr. Sloan, from the Committee appointed to report the best plan of improving the Monongahela river, made the following report.

"The Committee appointed to report a plan for the improvement of the Monongahela river, have taken that subject under consideration, and report to the Convention—That the best mode of improving the navigation of that river will be by Locks and Dams."

On the adoption of this Report, Mr. Stewart asked for a division of the House, which was granted; when the ayes were 46, noes 6.

Mr. Stewart, from the Committee to prepare a Memorial, reported the following, which was unanimously adopted:—

MEMORIAL.

To the Honorable, the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States, in Congress assembled:

The petition of the undersigned, citizens of the western parts of Pennsylvania and Virginia, respectfully represents—

That, as friends of a general and diffusive system of national improvement, extending alike to all parts of our common country, they contemplate, with high satisfaction, the period as at hand, if not actually arrived, when the extinguishment of the national debt must leave a very large surplus of revenue, applicable to objects of national improvement, uniting and binding more firmly together the distant parts of our happy Union, by the strong and enduring bonds of mutual dependence, resulting from mutual intercourse, and advancing at the same time the commercial prosperity of our country in peace, its strength and security in war. That among the objects of improvement having just claims to a participation in the national bounty, the undersigned feel warranted in presenting the Monongahela river as one worthy of your favorable consideration, and the more especially, when it is considered that this will be in fact but an extension of an improvement already in progress, under the act of 1824, for the improvement of the Ohio and Mississippi to a higher practicable point, and to which point this improvement must and will, we trust, be ultimately extended—and here your memorialists beg leave respectfully to state some of the considerations which would indicate the present as the proper period for such extension.

The country bordering on the Monongahela and its tributaries, whether considered in reference to its agricultural and manufacturing capabilities, or its mineral productions and resources, is not surpassed by any portion of country of the same extent and population between this district and the city of New Orleans.

The coal excavated from inexhaustible mines, on the banks of the Monongahela, for more than a hundred miles in extent, now actually supply the markets, propel the machinery, and feed the fires of the principal cities and towns on the Ohio and Mississippi. The ore and iron supplied by the same region keep in operation at least one hundred furnaces, forges, rolling and slitting mills, and other iron factories, supplying the new and growing States of the West with this necessary and indispensable article. No less than twenty glass works, manufacturing an average of 4,000 boxes each, per annum—eight extensive paper mills, besides a number of other manufacturing establishments, of cotton, wool, &c., are now in operation within a distance of fifty five miles along the Monongahela, and their number rapidly increasing. Within the last year, no less than twenty steamboats, varying from 80 to 600 tons have been built, and from 40 to 50 steam mills built for the manufacture of flour and boards alone, on the banks of the Monongahela, whose productions, for want of the proposed improvement, can now only be transported to the appropriate markets during short and uncertain periods of high water. The aggregate of the mineral and manufactured productions of the country of the Monongahela and its tributaries, have been estimated at one million of dollars per annum, and their agricultural productions may, we think, be safely estimated at an equal sum, and the amount would of course be greatly increased by the powerful stimulus which the proposed improvement would apply to the productive energies of our country.

The fall in the Monongahela river has been ascertained, by repeated surveys, to be less than seven inches per mile, for near one hundred miles in extent, and the whole sum required to make a perfect steam boat navigation, by locks and dams, falls considerably short of half a million of dollars; a sum altogether inconsiderable, when compared with the great importance of the objects to be attained; and, especially, when it is considered that the proposed improvement will extend equal facilities to the ascending and descending navigation, and open a new and extensive market to the sugar, cotton, lead, and other productions of the south, in exchange for the equivalent productions of this upper country.

Your memorialists, therefore, confidently trust that when your honorable bodies consider the importance of the improvement proposed, and the small sum required for its accomplishment—when you advert to the fact that it is not a new and independent work, but a mere extension of an improvement already in progress, to a higher practicable point—when you look to the mineral, manufacturing, and agricultural resources of the country through which it is to pass, and the immense and diffusive benefits it will confer on the country above and below, by facilitating the commerce, and cheapening the supply of important and indispensable articles to a great portion of the western states, you will not withhold the comparatively small amount required, from an overflowing treasury, for its accomplishment.

Mr. Craig offered the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:—

"Resolved, That the members of this Convention have viewed, with much gratification, the progress made towards the completion of the eastern section of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal; and that they do most earnestly pray that Congress will, during its ensuing session, make an appropriation for the commencement of the western section of that truly national work.

Resolved, That the members of Congress, from the different Districts represented in this Convention, be requested to use their influence in favor of such appropriation."

On motion of Mr. Stewart, it was resolved that a copy of the proceedings of this Convention, and the Memorial, be forwarded to the President of the United States, by the officers of this Convention, with a letter, requesting his early attention to the subject.

On motion of Mr. Gay—"Resolved, That 500 copies of the Reports and Memorial of the Committees appointed in this Convention, be printed and circulated.

On motion of Mr. Stewart—"Resolved, That the different printers in the counties represented in this Convention, and others favorable to its object, be requested to publish the proceedings of this Convention.

On motion of Mr. Byrne—"Resolved, That each member of the Convention be furnished with a printed copy of these proceedings, by the Secretary.

On motion of Mr. Stewart—"Resolved, That the thanks of this Convention be tendered to the Presbyterian and Lutheran congregations, in Greensboro and vicinity, for their liberality in affording to the convention the use of their Church, and to the citizens of Greensboro, New Geneva, and their vicinities, for their kind hospitality to the delegates assembled."

On motion of Mr. Craig—"Resolved, That the thanks of this convention be presented to the president, for the able, dignified, and impartial manner in which he has discharged his duties as presiding officer."

On motion of Mr. Stewart—"Resolved that the thanks of this convention be offered to the vice president, and secretaries, for the able and efficient manner in which they have discharged their duties."

On motion of Mr. Lazier—"Resolved That this convention do now adjourn.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER,

CONTAINING HIS REASONS FOR REMOVING THE PUBLIC DEPOSITS.

Read to the Cabinet on the 18th September, 1833.

Having carefuly and anxiously considered all the facts and arguments which have been submitted to him, relative to a removal of the public deposits from the Bank of the United States, the President deems it his duty to communicate, in this manner, to his Cabinet the final conclusions of his own mind, and the reasons on which they are founded, in order to put them in durable form, and to prevent misconceptions.

The President's convictions of the dangerous tendencies of the Bank of the United States, since signally illustrated by its own acts, were so overpowering when he entered upon the duties of Chief Magistrate, that he felt it his duty, notwithstanding the objections of the friends by whom he was surrounded, to avail himself of the first occasion to call the attention of Congress and the people to the question of its recharter. The opinions expressed in his Annual Message of December, 1829, were reiterated in those of December, 1830 and 1831, and in that of 1830, he threw out for consideration, some suggestions in relation to a substitute. At the session of 1831–2, an act was passed by a majority of both Houses of Congress rechartering the present Bank, upon which the President felt it his duty to put his constitutional veto. In his Message, returning that act, he repeated and enlarged upon the principles and views briefly asserted in his Annual Messages; declaring the Bank to be, in his opinion, both inexpedient and unconstitutional, and announcing to his countrymen, very unequivocally, his firm determination never to sanction, by his approval, the continuance of that institution, or the establishment of any other upon similar principles.

There are strong reasons for believing that the motive of the Bank in asking for a recharter at that session of Congress, was to make it a leading question in the election of a President of the United States the ensuing November; and all steps deemed necessary, were taken to procure, from the people, a reversal of the President's decision.

Although the charter was approaching its termination, and the Bank was aware that it was the intention of the Government to use the public deposit as fast as it accrued, in the payment of the public debt, yet did it extend its loans from Jan. 1831, to May, 1832, from $42,402,304 24 to $70,428,070 72, being an increase of $28,025,766 48, in sixteen months. It is confidently believed, that the leading object of this immense extension of its loans, was to bring as large a portion of the people as possible under its power and influence; and it has been disclosed, that some of the largest sums were granted on very unusual terms to conductors of the public press. In some of these cases, the motive was made manifest by the nominal or insufficient security taken for the loans, by the large amounts discounted, by the extraordinary time allowed for payment, and especially by the subsequent conduct of those receiving the accommodations.

Having taken these preliminary steps to obtain control over public opinion, the Bank came into Congress and asked a new charter. The object, avowed by many of the advocates of the Bank, was to put the President to the test, that the country might know his final determination relative to the Bank prior to the ensuing election. Many documents and articles were printed and circulated at the expense of the Bank, to bring the people to a favorable decision upon its pretensions.

Those whom the Bank appears to have made its debtors for the special occasion, were warned of the ruin which awaited them, should the President be sustained, and attempts were made to alarm the whole people by painting the depression in the price of property and produce, and the general loss, inconvenience, and distress, which, it was represented, would immediately follow the re-election of the President in opposition to the Bank.

Can it now be said that the question of a recharter of the Bank was not decided at the election which ensued? Had the veto been equivocal, or had it not covered the whole ground—if it had merely taken exceptions to the details of the Bill, or to the time of its passage—if it had not met the whole ground of constitutionality and expediency, then there might have been some plausibility for the allegation that the question was not decided by the people. It was to compel the President to take his stand, that the question was brought forward at that particular time. He met the challenge, willingly took the position into which his adversaries sought to force him, and frankly declared his unalterable opposition to the Bank as being both unconstitutional and inexpedient. On that ground, the case was argued to the people, and now that the people have sustained the President, notwithstanding the array of influence and power which was brought to bear upon him, it is too late, he confidently thinks, to say that the question has not been decided. Whatever may be the opinion of others, the President considers his re-election as a decision of the people against the Bank. In the concluding paragraph of his Veto Message, he said—

"I have now done my duty to my country.—If sustained by my fellow citizens, I shall be grateful and happy; if not, I shall find in the motives which impel me, ample grounds for contentment and peace."

He was sustained by a just people, and he desires to evince his gratitude by carrying into effect their decision, so far as it depends upon him.

Of all the substitutes for the present Bank which have been suggested, none seems to have united any considerable portion of the public in its favor. Most of them are liable to the same constitutional objections for which the present Bank has been condemned, and perhaps to all there are strong objections on the score of expediency. In ridding the country of an irresponsible power which has attempted to control the Government, care must be taken not to unite the same power with the Executive branch. To give a President the control over the currency and the power over individuals now possessed by the Bank of the United States, even with the material difference that he is responsible to the people, would be as objectionable and as dangerous as to leave it as it is. Neither the one nor the other is necessary, and therefore ought not to be resorted to.

On the whole, the President considers it as conclusively settled that the charter of the Bank of the United States will not be renewed, and he has no reasonable ground to believe that any substitute will be established. Being bound to regulate his course by the laws as they exist, and not to anticipate the interference of the legislative power, for the purpose of framing new systems, it is proper for him seasonably to consider the means by which the services rendered by the Bank of the United States are to be performed after the charter shall expire.

The existing laws declare, that "the deposits of the money of the United States, in places in which the said banks and branches thereof may be established, shall be made in said bank or branches thereof, unless the Secretary of the Treasury shall at any time otherwise order and direct, in which case the Secretary of the Treasury shall immediately lay before Congress, if in session, and if not, immediately after the commencement of the next session, the reason of such order or direction."

The power of the Secretary of the Treasury, over the deposits, is unqualified. The provision that he shall report his reasons to Congress, is no limitation. Had it not been inserted, he would have been responsible to Congress, had he made a removal for any other than good reasons, and his responsibility now ceases, upon the rendition of sufficient ones to Congress. The only object of the provision, is to make his reasons accessible to Congress, and enable that body the more readily to judge of their soundness and purity, and thereupon to make such further provision by law as the legislative power may think proper in relation to the deposit of the public money. Those reasons may be very diversified. It was asserted by the Secretary of the Treasury without contradiction, as early as 1817, that he had power "to control the proceedings" of the Bank of the United States at any moment, "by changing the deposits to the state banks," should it pursue an illiberal course towards those institutions; that "the Secretary of the Treasury will always be disposed to support the credit of the state banks, and will invariably direct transfers from the deposits of the public money in aid of their legitimate exertions to maintain their credit;" and he asserted a right to employ the state banks when the Bank of the United States should refuse to receive on deposit the notes of such state banks as the public interest required, should be received in payment of the public dues. In several instances he did transfer the public deposits to state banks, in the immediate vicinity of branches, for reasons connected only with the safety of those banks, the public convenience, and the interests of the Treasury.

If it was lawful for Mr. Crawford, the Secretary of the Treasury, at that time, to act on these principles, it will be difficult to discover any sound reason against the application of similar principles in still stronger cases. And it is a matter of surprize that a power which, in the infancy of the Bank, was freely asserted as one of the ordinary and familiar duties of the Secretary of the Treasury, should now be gravely questioned, and attempts made to excite and alarm the public mind as if some new and unheard of power was about to be usurped by the Executive branch of the government.

It is but a little more than two and a half years to the termination of the charter of the present Bank. It is considered as the decision of the country that it shall then cease to exist, and no man, the President believes, has reasonable ground for expectation that any other Bank of the United States will be created by Congress. To the Treasury Department is entrusted the safe keeping and faithful application of the public moneys. A plan of collection, different from the present, must, therefore, be introduced, and put in complete operation before the dissolution of the present Bank. When shall it be commenced? Shall no step be taken in this essential concern until the charter expires, and the Treasury finds itself without an agent, its accounts in confusion, with no depository for its funds, and the whole business of the government deranged? or shall it be delayed until six months, or a year, or two years before the expiration of the charter? It is obvious that any new system which may be substituted in the place of the Bank of the United States, could not be suddenly carried into effect on the termination of its existence, without serious inconvenience to the government and the people.

Its vast amount of notes are then to be redeemed and withdrawn from circulation, and its immense debt collected. These operations must be gradual, otherwise much suffering and distress will be brought upon the community. It ought to be not a work of months only, but of years, and the President thinks it cannot, with due attention to the interests of the people, be longer postponed. It is safer to begin it too soon than to delay it too long.

It is for the wisdom of Congress to decide upon the best substitute to be adopted in the place of the Bank of the United States; and the President would have felt himself relieved from a heavy and painful responsibility, if, in the charter to the Bank, Congress had reserved to itself the power of directing, at its pleasure, the public money to be elsewhere deposited, and had not devolved that power exclusively on one of the Executive Departments. It is useless now to inquire why this high and important power was surrendered by those who are peculiarly and appropriately the guardians of the public money. Perhaps it was an oversight. But as the President presumes that the charter to the Bank is to be considered as a contract on the part of the Government, it is not now in the power of Congress to disregard its stipulations; and, by the terms of that contract, the public money is to be deposited in the Bank, during the continuance of its charter, unless the Secretary of the Treasury shall otherwise direct. Unless, therefore, the Secretary of the Treasury first acts, Congress have no power over the subject, for they cannot add a new clause to the charter, or strike one out of it, without the consent of the Bank; and, consequently, the public money must remain in that institution to the last hour of its existence, unless the Secretary of the Treasury shall remove it at an earlier day. The responsibility is thus thrown upon the Executive branch of the Government, of deciding how long before the expiration of the charter, the public interest will require the deposits to be placed elsewhere. And, although, according to the frame and principle of our government, this decision would seem more properly to belong to the legislative power; yet, as the law has imposed it upon the Executive Department, the duty ought to be faithfully and firmly met, and the decision made and executed upon the best lights that can be obtained, and the best judgment that can be formed.

It would ill become the Executive branch of the Government to shrink from any duty which the law imposes on it, to fix upon others the responsibility which justly belongs to itself. And while the President anxiously wishes to abstain from the exercise of doubtful powers, and to avoid all interference with the rights and duties of others, he must yet, with unshaken constancy, discharge his own obligations: and cannot allow himself to turn aside, in order to avoid any responsibility which the high trust with which he has been honored requires him to encounter; and, it being the duty of one of the Executive Departments to decide in the first instance, subject to the future action of the legislative power, whether the public deposits shall remain in the Bank of the United States until the end of its existence, or be withdrawn some time before, the President has felt himself bound to examine the question, carefully and deliberately, in order to make up his judgment on the subject; and, in his opinion, the near approach of the termination of the charter, and the public considerations heretofore mentioned, are, of themselves, amply sufficient to justify the removal of the deposits, without reference to the conduct of the Bank, or their safety in its keeping.

"Patrick," said an employer, the other morning, to one of his workmen, "you come late this morning—the other men were at work an hour before you." "Sure and I'll be even with 'em to-night, then." "How, Patrick?" "Why, faith I'll quit an hour before 'em all, sure!"

The late Mr. B., who drove a pair of fine dun geldings in a curricle, met Mr. E., and accosted him thus: "You see I have changed my color; I now drive duns." "The devil you do," replied the other; "that is a change for the better indeed; I remember when the duns used to drive you."

A lady in a paroxysm of grief was said to have shed 'torrents of tears.' "Poor thing," remarked an unfeeling punster, "she must have had a cataract in her eye."

One hundred and one wagons, loaded with a great variety of foreign and domestic productions, were dispatched Westward, on Monday, from the Depot of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, in Baltimore.—Nat. Gaz.

Hot Leg Baths.—The effect of hot water to the lower extremities on the general circulation, was strikingly exemplified in the case of an old gentleman subject to attacks of violent palpitation, with a feeling of approaching dissolution. I found him one day in one of those paroxysms. It had lasted many hours, and a fatal termination was expected, as the usual remedies had been tried in vain. By the use of a pediluvium as hot as he could bear it, the affection ceased in a few minutes, and he took some norishment, slept, and rose quite recovered.—Dr. Graves.

The factories in Manayunk, which suspended their operations in consequence of the high price of cotton, are again in motion.

Post Office Delinquency.

ON the 19th of March last, I wrote a letter to Lewis Clapier, Esq. of Philadelphia, which I placed in the Post Office at Saegerstown on the same day, and by information lately received from Mr. Clapier, I find the letter has not reached him. Enclosed with the letter, in a strong envelop, was a patent for donation lot No. 6, containing three hundred acres of land, situate in the first district, now Beaver county, granted by the State of Pennsylvania to Major George Tudor, for services in the revolutionary war, and dated the 5th day of October, 1787. On the back of the patent is a transfer of same by Major Tudor to Walter Stewart, dated the 14th day of February, 1792, and both recorded in the Recorder's office, in Allegheny county, in Deed Book F, page 129, &c. The whole package was directed to Lewis Clapier, Esq., Philadelphia, and the Post Office in Saegerstown on the day first above mentioned, charged the Philadelphia Post Office with the postage thereof, amounting to one dollar twelve and a half cents. This package must have been detained, and most probably purloined, in some intermediate Post Office, and whoever has done it, has not had the honesty to forward it to its place of destination. As the patent can be of use whatever to the person into whose hands it may have fallen, but is of consequence to myself, I will give a generous reward to any one will deliver it to me, or forward it to the Post Office in Saegerstown, Crawford county, Pennsylvania, or to Lewis Clapier, Esq., in Philadelphia.

DOCTOR J. B. ROSE,

DENTIST,

(LATE OF REGENT STREET, LONDON,)

RESPECTFULLY informs the inhabitants of Pittsburgh and its vicinity, that he has taken an office, No. 80 Third street, next door to Dr. Burrell, where he performs all operations on the Teeth and Gums, in a style not to be surpassed.

☞ Natural and Artificial Teeth set in the best manner, and at the most reasonable charges.—Also—Porcelain Teeth, from a single one to a whole set.

On the first appearance of Tarter or Scurvy, Teeth should always be cleansed, as the corrosion of the tarter will, in a short time, reach the roots of the Teeth, and they will eventually fall out—when, by attending to them in season, they might be restored, at a trifling expense, to their original beauty.

The operation of Plugging and Filing the Teeth, when decayed, is so truly important that it is impossible to recommend it too earnestly to the attention of the public. Thousands of the most useful Teeth, which otherwise, on account of their painfulness, would be sacrificed by extraction, may thus be preserved for many years. Doctor R., convinced that he can render benefits beyond all price to those who need his assistance, will wait upon families at their residence, if requested, and Teeth brought to a Pearl White at one sitting.

☞ As Dr. R. intends to remain in town but a short time, as early a call as convenient is advisable.

Dr. R. has for sale the British Antiseptic Dentrifice. This elegant Tooth Wash, with a very little use, eradicates the Scurvy in Gums, and prevents the accumulation of Tarter, which not only blackens, but loosens the Teeth, and accelerates their decay; removes the causes of offensive breath, preserves the healthiness of the Gums, and renders the Teeth beautifully white. Price 50 cents per Bottle.

The Theologian, the Farmer, the Philosopher, the Sportsman, and even the Plough Boy, has each his Journal, where he can find a record of the passing events of the day, connected with his peculiar avocations and recreations. Hitherto, the Mechanics (who form a large and most important portion of the community) have had no Journal, to which they could turn, with the certainty of finding that information they desire, no periodical of which they could say: 'This is ours, and for us.' In the hope that the attempt to supply such a want at a price so reasonable as to be within the reach of all, will meet with your active support, the subscriber proposes to publish, on the first day of each month, a Mechanics' Magazine. It will contain a well digested selection of the most useful and interesting articles in the London Mechanics' Magazine, London Register of Arts and Sciences, Repertory of Inventions, Library of Useful Knowledge, Journal of the Franklin Institute, and other works, connected with the arts and manufactures, published in this country and in Europe, accompanied with numerous and well executed Engravings. Its pages will be open for the communications of all, and especially for those of the practical artisan, to whose interest it will be particularly devoted. The Mechanics' Magazine will contain, also, a due portion of the occurrences of the month, Scientific and Literary Reviews of Books, Anecdotes, Economical Receipts, Reports of the state of Mechanics' Institutions, and other Scientific Societies in this state and other countries. To be published monthly. Each succeeding number will contain 64 pages, handsomely printed, and stitched in a neat cover. Six numbers will form a volume, for which an index and title page will be supplied, and also a Portrait of some distinguished Mechanic, as a Frontispiece. Terms, $3 per annum, in advance.

DOCTOR ROBERT'S
☞ WELCH MEDICAMENTUM. ☜

FOR the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Cholic, Fever and Ague, Dysentery, Headach, Loss of Appetite, Flatulence, Hypochondria, Hysterics, Dropsical Complaints, and Heartburn, It also prevents all Bilious disorders, and removes habitual Costiveness, Asthma, Strangury, Gravel, Rheumatism, Gout, and Impurities of the Blood.

A person who uses this Medicamentum will not require the use of the lancet, or any means of the healing art. It restores and revives the animal spirits, invigorates the system, removes nervous tremors, obtunds rheumatic and anthritic pains, and prevents their return. It cleanses the stomach of all morbid humors, which cause indigestion, acidities, headach, and lowness of spirits; cures all bilious disorders, and all cholics of the stomach and bowels, almost immediately; inspires cheerfulness; gives comfort to the dropsical; takes away palpitation of the heart; gives circulation to the blood; restores bloom to the sallow or sickly cheek, and plumpness to the meagre habit; purges without pain, and banishes all cause of fever of every kind. It acts on the stomach, that great reservoir of the human system, a diseased state of which causes all diseases. No alteration in the usual habits of life is required, but the abstaining from distilled ardent spirits.

CERTIFICATE,
From Rev. Derick Lansing, D. D., Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Utica.
Utica, Jan. 6, 1830.

To Dr. Hitchcock.—Dear Sir: I have always been one of the number of those who have placed little confidence in nostrums or specifics, and for this reason, although I saw your advertisement of the Welch Medicamentum, I could not bring my mind to consent to use it. My sufferings, from indigestion, during the past summer, were so severe, as materially to affect my comfort, and my capacity for usefulness. I have reason to thank you, sir, that, on hearing of the state of my health, you kindly sent me your Medicamentum. I have taken it faithfully, and with entire success. I have not been visited with one of those turns of distress, which before were weekly periodical, since I began to take your valuable medicine. Could I receive the same relief which I have hitherto experienced, on condition of taking it for life, I should cheerfully comply with such condition. Your's, very truly, D. C. LANSING.

ANTI-DYSPEPTIC ELIXER.

ONE of the most agreeable and efficacious Medicines ever discovered for the permanent cure of those chronic states of derangement of the stomach, constituting that miserable disease called Dyspepsia.

The basis of this Elixer is vegetables, and perfectly innocent in its operation; it destroys that sour state of the stomach, the instant it is taken, and stops the morbid secretion, by giving strength to the muscular fibre of that important organ, by which means the peristaltic motion of the intestines is increased, and the costiveness obviated; a new action is given to the system, which puts an end to a train of distressing nervous sensations.

Another form of the disease in which the Elixer is admirably calculated to relieve, is the decline of fever, where the stomach will not bear the ordinary strengthening medicines indicated in such cases, it has the surprising effect of giving vigor, and restoring the natural secretions of the body, without increasing the febrile state. Not the least danger is to be apprehended from exposure to cold, while under the use of this medicine, nor will it interrupt necessary employment of the patient a single hour.

☞A number of cases of cures performed by the Anti-Dyspeptic Elixer in the vicinity of Pittsburgh can be given.

GEO. W. CARPENTER'S
COMPOUND SYRUP OF LIVERWORT,

A SAFE and Valuable Medicine for Coughs, Spitting of Blood, Consumption, and Liver Complaints.

Most of the medicines made use of for the above diseases are of a stimulating nature, composed generally of Resins and Balsams, in alcoholic solutions, which, although sometimes givingt emporary relief, in almost every instance where they are freely used, aggravate the disease, and reduce the strength of the patient.

This article possesses superior advantages over these preparations, its action being of a tonic, invigorating and strengthening nature, thus overcoming the disease by promoting expectoration, and gradully increasing the strength of the patient, and thus, without being attended with any unpleasant effects: it also agrees with the stomach, in a cases, and is a pleasant medicine to take.

PATENT PLANING MACHINE.—The right to use this valuable machine, invented and patented by William Woodworth, and known as Woodworth's Patent Planing Machine, may be obtained on application to the subscriber for the counties of Allegheny, Butler, Beaver, Washington, Green, Fayette, Somerset, Cambria, Indiana, Jefferson, Clearfield, M'Kean, Warren, Venango, Mercer, Crawford, and Erie, in the State of Pennsylvania. That part of Maryland lying west of the Blue Ridge; all that part of Virginia lying west of the Blue Ridge, except the county of Ohio. The whole of the state of Ohio except the counties of Hamilton, Butler, and Montgomery. The whole of the state of Kentucky, except the counties of Jefferson, Boone, Oldham, Gallatin, and Campbell. The whole of Indiana, except the counties of Floyd, Clark, Jefferson, Dearborn, and Switzerland. The whole of the state of Illinois, and the territory of Michigan. Rights to use the machine in that part of the United States, named above, will be sold by the single county or in larger districts. As it is presumed that no one will purchase without seeing the machine at work, a description of it is deemed unnecessary. Should any person, however, wish to purchase, and find it inconvenient to visit the places where it is in operation, a machine will be furnished, warranted to plane, tongue and groove, and bring to an exact width and thickness, a white pine board of 12 feet long, and of any width from 1 to 14 inches, in one minute and ten seconds, or an oak board of the same dimensions in 2 minutes and 10 seconds. Machines may be seen at work in the cities of New Orleans, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, and others at the south and east, at Wheeling, Virginia, and at the saw mill of Messrs. Irwin & Herron, in this city.

Persons desiring to purchase will have the certificates of scientific and practical men who have seen it at work, in the different places in which it has been put up, forwarded to them. They give their opinion as to the great value of the invention, state the time they have seen boards dressed by this machine, and describe the quality of the work as compared with that performed by hand labor.
